Hosting Appeal

Dear Visitor. The Tap has become increasingly busy and we can't stay online without your help. We need a hosting account upgrade to help cope with the increased activity and keep this free blog online. In this age of great change The Tap is a valuable independent resource where we can come together and share information the controlling parasites would rather we didn't have. Please help if you can and donate a small amount towards the hosting costs. Your donation will make a huge difference. Thank you in advance. Click here to donate

A darker unspoken truth

A Darker, Unspoken Truth

Former British MP Andrew Bridgen has exposed an even more insidious dimension to this crisis. Speaking with journalist Will Coleshill of Resistance GB, Bridgen revealed details of a vast, hidden network involved in the child sex trade—one that reaches deep into the fabric of British society. According to Bridgen, “hundreds and hundreds and hundreds” of individuals are implicated, and children are trafficked into the UK through unregulated small airports.

Bridgen’s allegations are staggering. He claims to have provided the government with the names of individuals, companies laundering money, and locations where children were taken under the guise of attending school. Instead, these children were exploited for pedophilic content and subjected to unimaginable abuse. His evidence was sent to MI5 and the National Crime Agency, yet no action has been taken. “When you see the names, you understand why,” Bridgen stated grimly.

A Network of Atrocity

The scale of this conspiracy is almost unfathomable. According to Bridgen, children are trafficked into the sex trade for about three years before being discarded—worn out by years of abuse. But the horror doesn’t end there. Bridgen alleges that, once these children are no longer “useful,” they are harvested for their organs, a grotesque practice that underscores the depravity of this network.

The former MP also pointed to a disturbing pattern of protection for powerful individuals. Referring to the late MP Greville Janner, whose alleged crimes were buried under layers of political and institutional silence, Bridgen highlighted how the elite shield their own. “There’s something wrong in our parliament when I’m attacking a Labour MP I believe to be a pedophile, and I’m getting flack from my own party,” he said, showcasing the complicity and cowardice within the system.

A Call for Justice

The grooming gang scandal was already a national disgrace, but Bridgen’s revelations demand immediate action. This is not merely about the crimes themselves—it is about a system that prioritizes reputations and political convenience over the lives of innocent children.

For too long, Britain’s political and law enforcement institutions have failed those they are sworn to protect. If the allegations of widespread complicity and cover-ups are true, then this is nothing short of a betrayal of the nation’s most vulnerable. It is not enough to express outrage or demand resignations. Concrete action must be taken to dismantle this network, prosecute those involved, and expose the truth, no matter how uncomfortable or damning it may be.

The question is: will Britain rise to this challenge, or will silence and inaction once again triumph over justice? For the sake of the countless victims, the time for answers is now.
